SHE SOUGHT HIS LIFE.

A Woman After Deputy U. S. Marshal Walker.

AN EXCITING SCENE AT WICHITA

In the Trial of Hyde Mattox—Another Woman Apparently Fascinated by the Prisoner Charged With Murder.

At noon Saturday there was a scene in the United States court which might have been a tragedy, says the Wichita Eagle.

Deputy United States Marshal George Walker, brother to the United States marshal, was put on the stand to testify for the prosecution in the Hyde Mattox case. After his testimony was all in he was leaving the room when a little brown-haired woman, with a flushed face, rushed up to him and said: "You are a dirty dog and I have a notion to kill you."

Mr. Walker said nothing, preferring to avoid a scene, but there were some movements on her part that would indicate that she might do him bodily injury.

When the court convened in the afternoon Mr. Walker laid the facts before Judge Williams, who became quite indignant to think that any one would dare to be a witness in the federal court.

"Did you assault a witness of this court?" said the judge sternly.

Anna Edwards tried hard to evade the question but the inquisitor hit her the second time.

"Mr. Marshal, what did she say to you?" said the judge.

"She called me a dirty dog and said something about killing me," said the judge.

"Did you assault a witness of this court?" said the judge.

"I did," said the broken faced Anna, "and it is the truth. I think he is a dirty, disreputable dog, and ought to be killed."

"I will fine you $10 for contempt of court," said the judge. "Sand Mr. Mattox, take her to the county jail and keep her there till the fine is paid."

Anna was very wrathful and it took a few stout-hearted fellows to execute the order of the court.

In a short time afterwards a friend paid the fine and shortly before 6 o'clock Anna was released from jail.

It is stated that after she was released from the jail she wanted to get into the United States court, and the supposition is that her intention was to kill Judge Williams, or at least to create another scene.

George Walker, when asked about the matter, said that if a man accused him as she did he would strike him to the ground where he stood, but as she was a woman he preferred to inform the court and let the master be settled there.

Colonel Dick Walker said: "They don't want to fool with a United States court."

The United States court means business, and will not tolerate anything like the work done today."

At 8 o'clock last night a reporter for the Eagle found Anna Edwards in her room in the Stein block, and she was still hot.

"Are you the lady that created the scene in the United States court today?" "Yes, sir, I am."

"What did you mean?" "I meant what I said."

"Did you mean to kill George Walker?" "I told I would like to kill him, and I think he should be."

"Why?" "Because he sat there before the jury and wanted to swear away the poor boy's life."

"You are a friend of Mattox's?" "No, sir. I don't know him. I never saw him until I saw him in the court room."

"It is reported that Hyde stated to one

DR. EMBREE'S TALK

To Young People at the First Methodist Church Last Night.

Rev. Dr. Embree of the First Methodist church preached his second sermon in the series of talks to young people at the church last evening.

The church was crowded and the singing of Prof. Leith of Kansas City was the best tenor heard in the city for a long time. His first selection, "Jerusalem," was almost faultlessly rendered, and the duet with James Moore was much appreciated.

Dr. Embree spoke from the text, "Prepare things honestly in the sight of all men." His discourse touched upon the necessity of being honest at school, in the home life, as young men and trying to stand his life away.
